Dawson Cemetery
Colfax County, New Mexico
Compiled by: Vivien A. Andrews©2002

Buried in this cemetery are men and women who worked for Phelps Dodge Corporation and their families. The Coal Mines opened as early as 1899 by J. B. Dawson. J. B. sold to the Phelps Dodge Corp. in July of 1905. Dawson was closed in 1950.

* All miners who died in the mine explosions of October 22, 1913 or Feb. 8, 1923 are marked with a white metal miners cross. Nationalities are noted when known as per the New Mexico Mine Inspectors 2nd Annual Report of Mines.

 Not buried in Cemetery, name came from list of New Mexico Mine Inspectors 2nd Annual Report of Miners that died in the October 22, 1913 explosion. 263 men died that day. There are about 70 Miners Cross' with no dates or names marking graves in the Cemetery.

 These are people buried in the Cemetery who have no marker. Relatives of the deceased have stated that their ancestors were buried there and the dates when know. The following database is as accurate as we could make it. The Cemetery is old and was left unkempt for many year following the close of the mine in 1950. It is now on the Historical Registry and should be kept from further damage, however many of the tombstones are of sandstone and were deteriorated to the point of unreadable. There were several different nationalities in Dawson and we have attempted to translate the tombstone transcriptions as best we could.

The languages we were working with were: Italian, Spanish, French, German, Serbian, Croatian, & Slovenian. This data is the joint effort of Irma & Buddy Morse, curators of the Old Mill Museum, Ethel Ramsey, and Bob & Vivien Andrews all residents of Cimarron, Colfax County, New Mexico. A special thanks to John & Peggy Bizyak for the calendar translations in Serbian, Croatian, & Slovenian. Please note that most of these names were taken directly from the tombstones in the cemetery and errors may have occurred due to the difficulty in deciphering the engravings. Some tombstones were badly damaged do to the extreme force of the wind and rain we have in New Mexico. Some tombstones are made of sandstone so there inscriptions may have all but disappeared. The cemetery is unkempt except for every two years just before the Dawson Reunion takes place. The committee mows the weeds and try to right the stones that have fallen over.
